Why a Corporate Executor?

The creation of the institution called the Trust Company had for its purpose the providing of an agency to handle, competently and honestly, trusts of all kinds. including those trusts that come to being after the death of persons of property.

Individual executors, administrators, trustees and guardians had frequently proved incompetent, sometimes dishonest. The legis lation which created the corporate trustee made the handling of trusts a business, and at the same time surrounded the trust company's dealings with safe guards against maladministration. The desirable qualities : the Executor or Trustee are perience and honesty; these the Trust Company has.
